25X1X On 9 December, source saw, at the Kutno railroad station, a westbound train loaded with 107 artillery pieces, presumably 85-mm AT guns, 20 trucks and 2 tanks.¹ A number of trains consisting of 55 to 60 railroad cars each and loaded with reparations goods were also seen at the station. The water station in Kutno was not adequate for the traffic passing through that railroad station and could not furnish water to the German locomotive. Other members of German locomotive brigades told source that they had been delayed in Kutno for more than four days. On 11 December, source noticed that the Brest Litovsk railroad station was jammed with trains. He counted 19 trains but stated that this did not represent the total of trains parked there. Some German locomotive engineers told him that they had waited in Brest Litovsk up to seven days. Five of the trains were loaded with new trucks; according to their way bills they were to be dispatched to Frankfurt/Oder. When returning to Germany, [REDACTED] east of Warsaw, two eastbound trains each of them carrying 70 to 80 new IFA trucks. On 14 December, source observed, west of Kutno, an eastbound train of 45 boxcars loaded with Soviet air force personnel. Large dumps of coal were noticed at all major railroad stations of the Frankfurt/Oder - Brest Litovsk railroad line.
